What the internet knows about you

The 12-Point Self-Audit Checklist

Twelve things a stranger can find about you in an afternoon — and how to shut each one down. Work top to bottom. Every box you tick is an attack surface you just closed.

- 01. Google yourself in quotes Search "your name" and "yourhandle" (with quotes). Note anything you didn't post yourself — that's what a stranger sees first.
- 02. Check your email in breaches Run every email you use through haveibeenpwned.com. Any hit = that password is public. Change it everywhere you reused it.
- 03. Follow the reused-username trail You've used one handle for years. Search it across old forums, game accounts, and dead profiles — they all link back to the current you.
- 04. Kill photo location data Turn off camera geotagging (iPhone: Settings > Privacy > Location > Camera > Never). Strip EXIF before sending raw photos.
- 05. Close abandoned accounts The 2016 profile with your real name and old face pic is where they start. Delete or lock every account you no longer use.
- 06. Opt out of people-search sites Spokeo, Whitepages, BeenVerified, and Radaris sell your address and phone. Submit their opt-out forms (or use a removal service).
- 07. Move off SMS 2FA Texted codes can be SIM-swapped. Switch email, bank, and socials to an authenticator app or passkey.
- 08. Audit what your posts reveal Look at your last 20 posts as a stranger. Do they show your routine, your gym, your street, your workplace? Trim the pattern.
- 09. Reverse-image your profile pics Drop your avatar into Google Images / PimEyes-style search. The same photo elsewhere links your 'anonymous' accounts to your real one.
- 10. Review connected apps + permissions Revoke old OAuth 'Sign in with...' grants and apps that can read your profile. Each one is a data leak you forgot about.
- 11. One unique password per account Reuse is the #1 way one breach becomes ten. Use a password manager so a single leak stays contained.
- 12. Re-run this every quarter Your footprint grows constantly. Put a 90-day reminder on your calendar and run the whole list again.

Do it in one click instead. Vantage Recon runs steps 1–5 and 9 automatically on any handle, locally, in seconds — and the $29 done-for-you report does all twelve for you. vantageosystems.github.io
